

April 7, 2005

Dear Senator:

We, the under-signed organizations and individuals, urge you to oppose Section 101 and 105 of the REAL ID Act of 2005 (H.R. 418), which would have a devastating impact on legitimate asylum-seekers and refugees fleeing political, religious, and other forms of persecution. This bill includes provisions that will make it much harder for refugees to obtain asylum in this country -- and could lead to their deportation into the hands of their persecutors. As the Senate considers how to respond to H.R. 418, we urge you to reject the fast-track approach taken by the House of Representatives and to ensure that a bill of this magnitude is given full consideration before it is rushed to a final vote.

Section 101 would require a refugee to prove his or her persecutor's "central reason" for the persecution, an incredibly onerous standard in mixed motive cases; allow a refugee to be denied asylum if he or she is unable to produce documents that confirm her testimony, even when the testimony provided has been deemed credible; give immigration officers or immigration judge broad latitude to deny asylum based on the refugee's perceived "demeanor." These changes are not technical and do not simply legislate current practice. These provisions substantively change existing law. Section 105 bars judges from granting temporary stays of removal that are essential to prevent asylum seekers from being returned to their countries of persecution while their cases are pending on appeal.

The provisions in Section 101 and 105 will greatly undermine the ability of refugees fleeing religious persecution and other forms of violence and abuse to make claims for asylum. The bill's proponents in the House sought to create the impression that changes are necessary to keep terrorists from obtaining asylum. In fact, terrorists and others believed to be a danger to the United States are already statutorily barred from asylum and subjected to a vast array of rigorous security checks. Moreover, Congress and the former INS have instituted many reforms to address the problems that occurred in the early nineties with the asylum system.

Sections 101 and 105 of the House passed REAL ID Act will have devastating consequences for bona fide asylum-seekers and refugees without making our nation safer. We, the undersigned, urge you to give the bill careful, deliberate consideration and reject these anti-asylum provisions that would deport refugees back into the hands of their persecutors to face rape, torture, or even death.

Thank you for your consideration of our views.

Sincerely,
